VOICE OF THE CUSTOMER

“If you are going to maximize your economic impact on students with technology, you have to minimize costs and create something that is standard and sustainable. So, what we did with Promethean is develop a standard that we could use across all classrooms and that would work in every space. When you have a standard, it also standardizes the level of support required from technology staff as they can support one type of device.”

Chief business official, public school district in California
